

Addendum 13-1: Basic salary for intermediate skilled work and salary levels at which eligibility provisions in Addendum 13, Article 62 are waived

Work category	Basic salary	Salary levels and waived eligibility provisions
1. Ocean fishing	Regular monthly salary per individual cannot be lower than NT$33,000 or total annual salary less than NT$500,000. However, the regular monthly salary of a foreign or overseas Chinese student, or those of Chinese descent, who graduate with an associate degree or higher from a college or university in Taiwan employed for the first time to engage in industrial intermediate skilled work must be a minimum of NT$30,000	The professional license, training course and practical accreditation eligibility rules in Addendum 13, Article 62 are waived for individuals with a regular monthly salary of NT$35,000 or higher.
2. Manufacturing
3. Construction
4. Slaughterhouse work
5. Outreach agricultural work
6. Agricultural work
7. Institutional care work	Regular monthly salary per individual cannot be lower than NT$29,000.	The continuing education course, supplementary training and Mandarin Chinese (Hoklo) language proficiency eligibility rules in Addendum 13, Article 62 are waived for individuals with a regular monthly salary of NT$31,000 or higher
8. Live-in care work	Regular monthly salary per individual cannot be lower than NT$24,000.	The continuing education course, supplementary training and Mandarin Chinese (Hoklo) language proficiency eligibility rules in Addendum 13, Article 62 are waived for individuals with a regular monthly salary of NT$26,000 or higher.

Notes:

1. Regular monthly salary as defined by the Directorate General of Budget, Accounting and Statistics, Executive Yuan, refers to the work remuneration paid to employees on a monthly basis, including basic monthly pay as well as fixed allowances and bonuses paid each month: rent allowance, travel expenses, boarding costs, utility (electricity/water) costs, monthly work bonus (production, performance, sales) and perfect attendance bonus; If payment is made in-kind, it should be discounted at current value; The above figures do not include the deduction of income tax, insurance payments and union membership dues.
2. Total monthly salary as defined by the Directorate General of Budget, Accounting and Statistics, Executive Yuan, refers to the actual salary paid to an employee at the end of the month, including regular salary, overtime pay and other irregular earnings.